See their performance schedule below. Tickets go on sale today at 10 AM local time at festival.com.Q: Appropriate procedure for declaring required but optional menu entries I have two menu entries in a menu.xml file which would be required to show up in the menu bar on Android, and the other two which are of no importance. I am using the isVisible() method in my onPrepareOptionsMenu() method to decide whether they are visible or not (as they're only of no importance if they're not visible). Unfortunately, as long as there are no menu entries, the default ActionBar that I've created is displaying the 'Home' menu entry as "Visible", even if it's not visible. This causes a status bar to show up next to it, even if I've set the theme to Theme.AppCompat.Light.NoActionBar. What's the appropriate way to handle this? A: This may or may not help you, public void
